

Faulkner (3)

They [“Nordic Americans”] decided that the melting pot was a ghastly failure, and remembered that the very name was coined by a member of one of the races—the Jews—which most determinedly refuses to melt. They decided that in every way, as well as in politics, the alien in the vast majority of cases is unalterably fixed in his instincts, character, thought and interests by centuries of racial selection and development, that he thinks first for his own people, works only with and for them, cares entirely for their interests, considers himself always one of them, and never an American.

The Klan slogan: “Native, white, Protestant supremacy.”...

The most menacing and most difficult problem facing America today is this of the permanently unassimilable alien....We intend to see that the American stock remains supreme.

Hiram Wesley Evans, Imperial Wizard and Emperor, “The Klan’s Fight for Americanism,” North American Review 223, no. 830 (March–May 1926): 40, 56, 60, jstor.org/stable/25113510.